Gradual warm-up to replace wintry conditions

Associated Press

DULUTH — Up to 10 inches of new snow in northwestern Wisconsin and northeastern Minnesota is closing schools and making travel challenging. But, forecasters say more spring-like temperatures are on the way.

busy and snow blowers humming in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Hayward, Wis., is dealing with another 10 inches of snow. Schools in Hayward, Ashland, Bayfield and Drummond are closed Tuesday.

In Minnesota, Duluth is also dealing with about 10 inches of new snow. The National Weather Service says temperatures near 60 should cause some fast melting this weekend.

Forecasters say it's the latest this much snow has been on the ground at the Twin Ports since records have been kept.

Minnesota House to vote on education budget

ST. PAUL — A long

push to fund all-day kindergarten statewide is ramping up at the Capitol.

House Democrats have made all-day kindergarten — and education as a whole — one of their top funding priorities for this session.

The House's education bill was expected to come up for a full vote Tuesday afternoon.

The bill increases funding for schools by $550 million compared to the state's last budget.

On top of expanding all-day kindergarten, it would fund early learning scholarships for 3- and 4-year-olds, add $209 per pupil to the state's bedrock funding formula and pay back $850 million in IOUs to schools used to balance previous budgets.

The Senate's education budget, set for a vote later this week, doesn't pay back those loans and adds less money to the formula.

Prosecutors say Alberto Palmer met the victim, 18-year-old Brittany Clardy, through an online escort ad and killed her with a hammer at a residence in Brooklyn Park Feb. 11.

Clardy's body was found Feb. 19 in a car at the Columbia Heights impound lot.

entered the GNC store at the mall and Birch demanded that the clerk take money out of the register and put it into a bag. They left with an undisclosed amount of cash, according to police.

Fergus Falls Police Detective Carol Schmaltz sent out an alert on the regional crime information system following the Fergus robbery, and was later contacted by authorities in South Dakota. Birch had allegedly showed his identification as he tried to buy ammunition in South Dakota, but he was not allowed to.

Birch brandished a handgun in some of the robberies, though no weapons were used during the Fergus case, according to police.

The duo will be charged in Nebraska, and then warrants will be issued for charges in other states, according to Schmaltz. Local charges are planned in the case, she said.

Flood: April snowiest month of the winter

peaceful," he told KVLV-TV.

"It inconveniences you for maybe a few days or maybe a week or two, but save the town — that's what's really important," Holder said.

Recent snowfall has bumped up the odds of major flooding in Fargo and neighboring Moorhead, a metropolitan area of about 200,000 people.

April has been the snowiest month of the winter for the Fargo area, which is unusual, according to the National Weather Service. January typically is the snowiest month, but this winter it was only the fourth-snowiest, the agency said.

As of Friday, 16.4 inches of snow had fallen in the Fargo area this month. The next-highest total was 14.6 inches in March. The weather service said this April has been the fourth-snowiest of all time for the Fargo area, with more than a week to go in the month. Forecasters said a sustained warm-up could happen by the end of the week — hastening the snowmelt and resulting flooding — with highs statewide reaching into the 50s and 60s. That will be a big departure from a cold early spring in the state.

Bismarck, Minot and Jamestown all set record-low temperature records for the date on Saturday, with the mercury dropping into the mid- and low teens, according to weather service reports. Bismarck's and Jamestown's records had stood for 47 years, and Minot's had stood for 86 years. Dickinson had a record low on Thursday, at 11 degrees.

Flood warnings are in effect for the Minnesota cities of Dilworth and Sabin along the Buffalo River, and for the North Dakota city of Wahpeton, along the Red River, as snowmelt begins running off into those rivers, weather service meteorologist Jeff Makowski told Forum Communications.

"The main-stem Red is also on the rise, in Wahpeton, in Hickson, even modestly in Fargo," Makowski said.

More dramatic river rises are possible heading into the weekend as the warm-up gets under way, he said.

In Grand Forks, to the north of Fargo, city officials on Monday closed one pedestrian bridge over the Red River and said they would close a second on Tuesday, in anticipation of flooding.
